

Chapter 1

The Complete Parent/Guardian Interpretation Chart

Sun Moon or Moon Sun Parents

Effective Influence:

These parents created a happy home. They agreed and worked well together as a team.

Family life had an air of peace and tranquility because of the combined efforts of both partners.

The partners identified well with each other: they created a normal, harmonious male/female - father/mother role in the environment.

There were pleasant meals, fun conversations, shared hobbies and harmonious outings together: they were partners that enjoyed doing things for each other and for their family.

Ineffective Influence:

There was a distinct difference in the make-up of the mother and the father. They were direct opposites in ways that made role identify difficult for the children.

Each parent/guardian stood for entirely different things. Their philosophies were so drastically different that they presented a confusing picture.

There was always anger, criticism, general incompatibility, or an undertone of unhappiness in the home. The result was inner conflict for the children.

Anger Development - Your Roots

Sun Mercury or Moon Mercury Parents

Effective Influence:

These parents had strong intellects. They were sensitive, understanding people.

They had a good amount of pride in the home and in their family. They represented common sense and practicality.

The parents had the ability to develop the mental faculties of their children by nourishing their ideas and hopes in an excellent way; communication with their children was normal and easy.

Because these Sun/Mercury or Moon/Mercury parents were in general self-assured they were able to establish good intellectual guidance in the lives of their children.

Ineffective Influence:

These parents were inflexible and dogmatic; they asserted their opinions in an arrogant manner.

Their emotionalism, at times, took much away from the clearness of their thinking. Prejudices or opinions formed without knowledge were apparent in their communication with their children.

They possessed an intellectual aimlessness or lack of clarity and direction that was frustrating for their children: often it was more one parent talking 'at' you than actual communication.

They offered little confidence to their children as to intellectual guidance.

Chapter 1

Sun Venus or Moon Venus Parents

Effective Influence:

These parents possessed and exhibited genuine affection and loving kindness for their children

They were artistic people who encouraged the creativity in their children. They developed an element of refinement in the family by making them aware of the finer things in life.

These parents reared children who were well bred, polite and cultured. The parents possessed an element of kindness along with a gentle harmonious disposition that gave the children a strong sense of security.

Ineffective Influence:

These parents had affection for their children that was without depth; they often simply bought their love without putting time and care into the relationship.

They possessed an artificial or ‘phony’ quality that was fostered in their children; this quality exhibited itself as a pretense or falseness in the character. The parents did not pass on to their children an understanding of true values.

The parents were careless and indolent in regard to domestic matters. There was excessive indulgence in pleasure along with an intemperate attitude.

They were often neglectful, reckless and inconsiderate. The children had a very poor role model to follow.

Anger Development - Your Roots

Sun Mars or Moon Mars Parents

Effective Influence:

These parents or guardians inspired you to good energy performance; they encouraged you taking aggressive, assertive action in various areas of your life.

They had strong principles but allowed you free rein in making your own decisions and accounting for your own failures and your own successes. You were not oppressed in the relationship; there were energetic discussions and debates with your ideas as well as theirs taken into great consideration.

Their strength was passed on to you -- not used as an iron hand against you; as a result, children developed strong self-confidence.

Ineffective Influence:

The children were domineered mercilessly in the relationship -- this inspired strong feelings of inadequacy in facing life.

All decisions were made by the parents either in a bossy, dictatorial way or with a subtle intimidation; this undermined healthy confidence from developing in the children.

The parents subjugated the children with their “My way is the best way” attitude. There was no real communication and the children were kept in a type of bondage.

In most cases the children became dependents as a result of the constant intimidation. The intimidation was in some cases quiet manipulation and in other cases brutal tyrannical dictating.

Chapter 1

Sun Jupiter or Moon Jupiter Parents

Effective Influence:

These parents were peace-loving people with a strong philosophical outlook. Their ability to remain serene through great adversity was a grand benefit for their children.

They were intellectual people with much common sense; they taught, through words and actions, the values of moderation in life.

The home environment was excellent for the children because the parents were generally always good natured, helpful, and sympathetic with them.

In summary, the Sun/Jupiter or Moon/Jupiter parent/guardian offered great security for their children.

Ineffective Influence:

They were very opinionated and arrogant or aggressively haughty. It was sometimes difficult for the children to share the limelight or get the proper share of attention from these parents.

The extravagance, carelessness or showy nature of the parents in some instances undermined the disciplining of the children. The natural way for the parents was to let things slide.

Restlessness along with a certain element of extremism was part of the parent's make-up. This extremism sometimes exhibited itself in narrow religious training

Anger Development - Your Roots

Sun Saturn or Moon Saturn Parents

Effective Influence:

The parents were extremely moral people and conformed to standards of correctness in conduct and character. They were steady, duty-bound people, and love for the children was considered a serious responsibility.

Affection was shown in a matter-of-fact, practical way. The children felt a good combination of love and discipline that built strength and security. They provided a secure kind of caring.

The parents were extremely hard working people. Often, the family provided business opportunities for the children; these opportunities came through either contacts or inheritance.

Ineffective Influence:

These parents were narrow and bias; in many cases their thinking actually appeared as stupidity.

They were rigid and unfeeling people -- depression and discontent kept than from becoming emotionally close. The Saturn parent or guardian had an unusual amount of morbid fears that they passed on to their children.

Harshness, severity, frustration and a lack of emotional satisfaction had been endured by the parents; ultimately, these same ineffective traits were passed on to the children.

Self-expression between parent and child was often completely denied. Children of ineffective Saturn parents grew up timid and distrusting of life.
